

COMMUNITY PARTNER OF THE YEAR AWARD

The Wildlife Habitat Council's annual Community Partner of the Year Award provides an opportunity for companies to acknowledge the dedication and hard work of community-based organizations and individuals that have helped make their program(s) a success.

Many Wildlife at Work<sup>SM</sup> and Corporate Lands for Learning<sup>SM</sup> programs have strong ties to community-based organizations and individuals. The hard work and dedication of these community partners are instrumental to the ongoing success of a Wildlife at Work and/or Corporate Lands for Learning program. Certified Wildlife at Work and Corporate Lands for Learning programs can show their appreciation of an outstanding community partner by nominating them for the Community Partner of the Year Award.

Al Thrower (2009 Award Winner nominated by Ontario Power Generation) working with high school co-op students to monitor and maintain nest boxes at Nanticoke Generating Station.

Linda Thrower (2009 Award Winner nominated by Ontario Power Generation) working with a Nanticoke Generating Station employee to band birds on the site.

Community partners can be nominated by submitting a Community Partner of the Year application, detailing the impact that the nominee has had on the Wildlife at Work and/or Corporate Lands for Learning program, to the Wildlife Habitat Council. All nominated community partners will receive a certificate acknowledging their work. The winner of the Community Partner of the Year Award will be announced at the Wildlife Habitat Council's Annual Symposium.
